It's way to late to think of someone I would call now The neon signs got tired red eye flights help the stars out I'm safe in a corner just hours before me

I'm waking with the roaches the world has surrendered
I'm dating ancient ghosts (the ones I made friends with) The comfort of fireflies long gone before daylight

And if I had one wish fulfilled tonight I'd ask for the sun to never rise
If God lent his voice to me to speak I'd say: "Go to bed, world"

I've always been to lame to see what's before me And I know nothing sweeter than champagne from last New Year's Sweet music in my ears and a night full of no fear

But if I had one wish fulfilled tonight I'd ask the sun to never rise
If God passed the mic to me to speak I'd say: "Stay in bed, world"

Sleep in peace
