Don't blame your daughter, that's just sentimental don't blame your mum, for all that you've done wrong your daddy's not guilty, you came out a little faulty and the factory closed, so you can't hold them liable

You come from an island, your cutting diamonds, with a rubber knife your autograph's worthless, so dont send me letters and dont mail me cash, cause your money is no good, what's left in your mattress, is holes and lack of love left some hair from a horse, but none of it is yours, man

You come from an island,
you're cutting diamonds with a rubber knife
And the song you sing today wasn't always in your head, the words you tryin' to say are the ones you should've said they're glistenin' like diamonds, go out and find' em
but don't blame your daughter

Read me your tombstone, tell me you're sorry, fax me your will, you owe me something still Blood is like water the bath that you poured me has drained and it's gone, don't blame it on your son

the words you're tryin' to say are the ones you shouldn've said they're glistening like diamonds,

go out and find'em

The world is full of diamonds
go out and find'em
