"It's Raining Again"

It's raining again, but I don't need the rain
To tell me you've gone and I'm lonely again
The tears that I've shed make a note of my pain
Tracing patterns of blue - And it's raining again

From my eyes they are falling, like the drops from the sky
These tears that are calling, "Now why did he lie?"

Since the day that we met, I have known you would leave
But I can't make my heart turn away and believe

It seems just last night - I could see you so plain
It was raining a blue rain - Now it's raining again
For this love to go on - so one-sided, it's plain
But the sun just won't shine, and it's raining again
