"Diamonds And Gold"

I swim through a sea of trials and persuasion
Oblivious to my luke warm skin
Knocking on dishonours door
Oblivious to my luke warm skin

I brought out the shame and I scarred the hero
Struggling to push against the current
And I see myself all around we are a dime a dozen
We are not diamonds

We struggle to see
We're caught in this drift of life
Because we are blind, careless and comfortable
But do we forget the consequence of the wrong choice in this free will
It's just too easy to dig a grave

It's far too easy to dig a grave, a trap that's waiting to pull you under forever
What does it take to get back in line?
It's far too easy to live this way.

IT'S FAR TOO EASY TO DIG A GRAVE!

I watch you, I look up to the wise
Follow their anchors
I see their set in deep
They wont drift away, They wont drift away

I'll ask and search until I find the answer
It's my will, let it be yours
These bonds that hold me and bind my life
Won't you break them

Set me free, let me see

Arm in arm we take each other, we'll push through this together
If an eye strays we must hold on and not let go

I bought out the shame and I scarred the hero

Struggling to push against the current
I see myself all around, we are a dime a dozen, we are not diamonds

DIAMONDS, RUBIES, PEARLS AND GOLD!
