I've heard stories and tales about puppets and whales, but never heard stories of you, I've not seen you around in this quiet part of town, you've shown up right out of the blue

And I've been waiting for someone, to share my adventures,
and you seem quite perfect to me dear, and did i mention that you seem quite perfect to me

So come running come running come running through
rivers,
come running come running through rivers with me, oh come running come running come running through
rivers,
we'll show them what living should be

We are pirates at sea with the world at our feet, sailing on waves made of stars, a princess needs a friend where the laughter won't end, that's more than a prince who can charm

And i've been searching for someone, who makes life a story,
and you seem quite perfect to me dear,

and you won't be sorry, but you seem quite perfect to me

rivers,
come running come running through rivers with me,
rivers,

If things go wrong we'll just re-write them, come running your running your running with me, and if demons call we'll stand and fight them,
come running your running your running with me

Come running come running come running through
come running come running through rivers with me,
rivers,
come running come running through rivers with me,
come running come running come running through
rivers,

They've heard stories and tales about puppets and whales, now they'll hear stories of you.
