We used to talk about it, until the darks of the world made me blind

And I forgot about it, 'cause I nurtured the clouds in my eye
And all this time I lost myself in lies, it was you I was trying to find
And though it really hurts sometimes, it was always true

Maybe you and your sad blue eyes, pull me through, out of all these lies Maybe you and your sad blue eyes, pull me through, if you come tonight

And if you thought about it, if it's there in the back of your mind
And if you still remember, if you're reading my name between the lines
If you got an emptiness inside, we should let our worlds recollide
And though it really hurts sometimes, it was always
true

Maybe you and your sad blue eyes, pull me through,
out of all these lies
Maybe you and your sad blue eyes, pull me through, if
you come tonight
