I swear to Ford we can be more than this
Why does the color we wear dictate how we live?
And hello, my name is... Whatever you want it to be
Life's a holiday, but I'm not living free

The bell is ringing, it's time again
To put our lives in their hands
But I won't take it anymore
We're settling the score
Cause I'm not okay living day by day
(This is the end, my heart is failing)
Without the freedom to find my meaning

I will not medicate
And why is love as strong as your body's worth?
I hear them in my sleep
Yet they say I hear nothing
Cause they'll rip your body from your soul
I hear nothing
You won't come back again

The bell is ringing, it's time again
To put our lives in their hands
But I won't take it anymore
We're settling the score
Cause I'm not okay living day by day
(This is the end, my heart is failing)
Without the freedom to find my meaning

Swallow, slip back into dream
This comfortable reverie
Abandon the real for fleeting delusions
He that dies pays all debts
So, let this rope steal my breath and take my leave
Of this brave new world

I have my dreams

I once heard knowledge was sacred
But now it's secret
And all I learned were roses and shockwaves
But what can I say?

If we were born in this society
Then who can save me?
There is no place to be free

I have my dreams
I was built from what broke me
My body's weak
I have my dreams
