You say the fire came from the sun
Ordered by the anointed one
And all the time you had was your own
Now the time has passed you by
And withered in the lookers eye
Silver like the wizards of lore

Now you sit and scream at the sun
Lonely like the eldest one
Blisters form beneath the skin
Now you sit and scream at the sun
Helpless as an infant one
Pestilence starts from within Bomb dropped from the Enola Gay
Came from the sky from miles away
60 years now to the day
We watched them melt
We watched them burn
They're children died we'll never learn
How can we live with ourselves, no way
Oh how they scream at the sun
Mothers mourn for the missing ones
As the radiation eats from within
Oh how they scream at the sun scream at the sun
Fathers weep for the chosen ones
And the cancer... slowly will win
The bomb is not a resolution
And it's not a way to live
It's a means for an execution
And a means that we can't forgive
Man wants to rule this world
Even if by fire
Man wants respect in the land
But no one follows liars
Now he sits and stares at the sun
Helpless as an infant one
Blistering and burning
Now he stares at the sun again
Blistering and burning stares at the sun... blind eyes dead
Now he sits and screams at the sun

Blistering and burning
