Extension of the being. This altered universe resides inside my mind, explaining the existence of space and time. An explosive rush engulfs me like fire, melting the darkness that looms inside my conscience. This body is a shell protecting the energy within my spirit. Reality... what it can become! Transformation. Swimming through the past, my thoughts extract film-like visions of my childhood; a flipbook of destructive memories. Black skies devour the light and inside I become night, paranoia sets in, fists clenched, ready to fight. Content with the monster I've become; rapidly releasing all sick thoughts within my being. The sensation subsides leaving behind a moral decision to better my life and expel the poisons inside. Losing sensation of dimensions.
