(Hank Mills - Charlie Walker)

Facing the wall feeling lonely
But it offers me a place to cry unseen
Facing the wall feeling lonely
I can't face the room with all these shattered dreams.

I brought her here to dance and have a good time
And for a while I've thought that she was mine
Then through the door walked someone from her past
The things that I had planned with her I knew would never last.

Facing the wall feeling lonely
But it offers me a place to cry unseen
Facing the wall feeling lonely
I can't face the room with all these shattered dreams.

--- Instrumental ---

I turn around and look at them but I know
These tears I hide inside would surely show I'll just stand here alone and cry until I hear their footsteps leave the room and everything is still.

Facing the wall feeling lonely
But it offers me a place to cry unseen
Facing the wall feeling lonely
I can't face the room with all these shattered dreams...
