(Raymond F. Page)

I don't mind saying I've been lonesome for those kisses
that I've known Don't mind saying I've been crying just because I'm all
alone
I'd be lying if I told you I don't miss you anymore
Don't mind saying I'd be glad to see you walking through that door.

Don't mind saying I've been missing arms that used to hold me tight Knowing how they'd feel around me on these cold and lonely nights
Don't mind saying that I'd like to feel your lips so sweet on mine
For the mem'ry of your loving touch haunts me all the time.

I don't mind saying I've been lonesome for those kisses
that I've known
Don't mind saying I've been crying just because I'm all
alone
I'd be lying if I told you I don't miss you anymore
Don't mind saying I'd be glad to see you walking
through that door.

I don't mind saying I've been lonesome for those kisses
that I've known
Don't mind saying I've been crying just because I'm all
alone
I'd be lying if I told you I don't miss you anymore
Don't mind saying I'd be glad to see you walking
through that door...
