"Diamond Eyes"

Loving the phone
Loving the tone it sings to me in perfect key
Loving the past
The past three weeks where I felt like I did the same
Thing
Loving everyone who's just like me
I could die if I had to leave
I could die if I had to leave
I could die if I had to leave
Oh, the town is only really worth the ground

Loving the guy
Who sucked you dry like your blow-dryer's power outlet
And all those words that fly
And cut your diamond eyes open into fractions
Asking, where the good times went?
Now those diamonds aren't worth a cent
Asking where all the good times went
Asking where all the good times went
Asking where all your time got spent
Is the town only really worth the ground?

We're only just kids throwing rocks on the playground
You took one in the temple, oh, you'd better stay down
But since you're too far from home
You just run away now
