Even when blindfolded,
It's so easy to see right through you.
You lie in a bed of contradictions,
But that part, I'm sure you already knew.
Please don't attempt to justify the hatred on your face.
Everyone deserves to love and be loved.
Everyone deserves to love and be loved.

If you never existed,
Then we'd be better off.
Judge based on one's character,
And not who they choose they love.

For those who've been humiliated,
I swear it gets better for you.
Leave their ignorance in the past,
They have no idea what you went through.
Forced to bear those dark days,
Through the hell you only knew.
We will stand up,
We will stand tall for you.

We would be better off
Without your mindless taunting.
How is it so hard to just respect everyone?
Is it really a task so daunting?
Please don't attempt to justify the hatred on your face.
Everyone deserves to love and be loved.
Everyone deserves to love and be loved.

I remember ever since that first day, that warm
September week.
I always thought you and I were impossible to see.
Now I'm so, and you're so, we're both so in love.
I swear I'll never know just what you see in me.
