The Fourteenth Year
Tomorrow is another day Hopefully the clouds will hold
And keep the rain away
But as the hours pass
And the time goes by I find that the tomorrow I couldn't wait for Is like yesterday, to hot to find so watch time pass you by never let the years fly away

the memories will last forever

But as the summer rain cools the hot streets Steam begins to rise
I feel the summer leaking away
And it's back to class for these eyes
To greet my friends and my foes
For now I'll just grow with time As long as it goes

never let the years fly away
the memories will last forever
