how could you come with me when you knew all along that you had to go

how could you you watch me sleep so close to you
pretending not to know how could you memorize my name and forget who i am

how could you think you're still the same
believing i can

it's too late to stop pretending it's too late for a new beginning
later than the sunset
later than the rain
later than ever to love you again

how could you ask for more with an innocent smile
trusting me to stay

how could you close the door and leave me here
supposing I'm ok

how could you break down
my disguise
and uncover my fears

how could you look into my eyes ignoring my tears

it's too late to start pretending
later than the rain
[x2]

its too late
