

Anathema

"In Case Of Furture Complication"

Visit "In Case Of Furture Complication" on MotoLyrics.com

Rewrite the book
Chapter three will be empty
Pure white and hidden in the shadows
One voice moving lips are absent whispers
Design for the future
Twisting steel frames cells glass walls
Observation seating this room
Will be full one day
On the rise
Shoot when you see the pales of there eyes Climbing up to meet us to take us on So place your arms back in the sockets for Rebuilding from our losses we wont be taken now
In the open windows smearing portrait across the view Reset the stopped watch two days behind
"Did I sleep through it?"
Consciousness takes control semi trucks and white dotted lines car stillin drive
Just pull over park getting out to climb the fence Breaks skin falling down on dead leaf covered ground much softer forgiving
From much harder concrete sidewalks "I just expected more"
Or did you forget "Did you forget?"
This was no longer a dream those cold hands on your face
The ones sliding down to your neck and you wont miss the pressure of feet standing on your chest But that's just how the body reacts when the tear is found Take notice of the trees climbing towards the whole in the sea above limbs have opened the sky
Branches cartoon greeting

Thanks to Joe Wiederman
(beerboy450@aol.com) for these lyrics

Visit Anathema page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

