Bridges tremble behind us they are falling we've been sent home for so far bringing us from them but the road we go won't be far we'll save this day under your name tear out our insides breaking hearts in seas of ink as the cities rise up from the hillsides where the lights had burnt my eyes missing the moment my own won't be found tonight and sail out the first day when these roads turn more underneath the red of streetlights are right (save this for) lights pour down on us embraced in the moment the stars fell
