Pretend for a moment I'm not in this place.
No scars full of needles, no more lines to chase.
The hands on the clock no longer steal my fate.
Pretend this madness never knew my name.

I need a fix of something
Cause this time you could really be the end of me.

And I'm dying to live again.
I'm tired of running away.
I'm dying to smile again.
I'll make up for all my mistakes.
I'm sorry for my disguise,
For filling your head with lies.
So one more time sing along.
You've heard it ten million times.

Pretend for a second I'm not what I seem.
A face in the light, you can trust in me.
No bloodshot eyes that only look to take.
No longer the one who sleeps on razorblades.

I need a fix of something
Cause this time you could really be the end of me.

And I'm dying to live again.
I'm tired of running away.
I'm dying to smile again.
I'll make up for all my mistakes.
I'm sorry for my disguise,
For filling your head with lies.
So one more time sing along.
You've heard it ten million times.

Once again.
I find myself in this place I've been.

Blame within.

Mine alone.

I can change. (You'll never change.)

I can change. (You'll never change.)

I need a fix of something

Cause this time you could really be the end of me.

And I'm dying to live again.

I'm tired of running away.

I'm dying to smile again.

I'll make up for all my mistakes.

I'm sorry for my disguise,

For filling your head with lies.

So one more time sing along.

You've heard it ten million times.

(You'll never change.)

(You'll never change.)

(You'll never change.)

(You'll never change.)

(You'll never change.)

(You'll never change.)

(You'll never change.)
