Silver Jews

Lookout Mountain Lookout Sea

My Pillow Is The Threshold

I take decaf coffee

Two sugars and one cream

I don't see the use in staying up

Just to watch tv

I unplug all the neon

Turn the ringer off the phone

Throw my thoughts like tomahawks

Into this world which I disown

Because the pillow that i dream on

Is the threshold of a kingdom

Is the threshold of a world

Where I'm with you

Its a dark and snowy secret

And it has to do with heaven

And what looks like sleep

Is really hot pursuit

I hold your picture in my mind

It makes me warm when I'm cold

It gets me up, it makes me walk

It makes me question what I'm told

Somewhere in a foggy atlas

Lookout mountain, lookout sea

First life takes time, then time takes life

Now the next move's up to me

Because the pillow that I dream on

Leads to some fantastic glory

It's a threshold of a world

I can't ignore

Like time on school from heaven(?)

Did you find me sleeping in your doorway

Now I'm here for good

I won't leave you anymore
