(Billy Henderson/Bob Morrison)

I needed you too much for my own good
And you needed me - to go on needin' you
I wasn't strong enough to think I could Do the one thing - I knew I had to do
It's hard to believe that I walked away
The change in me is like night and day

When I go dancing in the light -
My feet don't touch the ground
Leaving did wonders for my pride -
I've grown by leaps and bounds
A world once cold and narrow - Suddenly looks bright
I stopped walking in your shadow - And started dancing in the light

I've finally seen the truth with my own eyes
I can't believe how blind I must've been
And lookin' at my heart I realize
How much I hate the dark you kept me in Now that mornin' sun - is shinin' down on me
And everyone can see - a different side of me.

When I go dancing in the light
My feet don't touch the ground
Leaving did wonders for my pride
I've grown by leaps and bounds
A world once cold and narrow - Suddenly looks bright
I stopped walking in your shadow
And started dancing in the light.
