Always feeling so uncomfortable, and the situation tends to be predictable Hope slips through trained fingers, It's how it's always been I can't seem to tear myself away, been living in the past with my mistakes
But I always find a way to numb the tension, bury thoughts alone
Under the skin to hide the damage done to my defense Senses dulled then cracked, I concede that maybe I'm unsure of just what it takes to frustrate and dismantle apathy
Rain, wash away the temptations before I let them get the best of me Yesterday's accomplishments, replaced by tomorrow's burdens
A never ending cycle begins, so diseased and looking for a means to an end I found nothings solid anymore, all that's left is try and I confess that maybe I'm unsure of just what it takes to frustrate and
dismantle apathy
Rain, wash away the temptations before I let them get
the best of me
Designed and developed inside of my lungs, on the tip
of my fucking tongue
But no one ever gets the point That life is always about to fall to pieces, just something beautiful that's about to get Wrecked
But no one wants to feel at all Because we've made ourselves so numb, but I want to feel something I won't ever live that way again, somewhere along the line I lost feeling And I lost control, But then I lost strength and completely lost hope When our lives are consumed by society's fumes, We punch our time clocks and watch the ignorance bloom
And how strange that we all feel the same, and how strange that no one dares complain See I'm always turning backwards and forwards again retracing my steps to the bitter cold end Rewind the tape and let me see exactly where it went wrong, indulge in our pasts strong

And how strange that we all feel the same, and how strange that no one complains
Designed and developed inside of my lungs on the tip
of my fucking tongue
But no one ever gets the point
That life is always about to fall to pieces something beautiful that's about to get wrecked
But no one wants to feel at all Because we made ourselves so numb, don't you want to feel something
