I saw the moon rise up and drench the night
In polyphonic palm coast light

I felt the breeze rush in to fill the air
And scatter stardust everywhere

The blurry rainclouds settled on the bay
To counteract the ocean spray

When the sunrays scatter through the atmosphere
I'm always gonna be right here
When the raindrops splatter on the palm-lined shore
You'll never see me disappear

Somewhere off the coast, there's an island home
Where sharks go soaring underwater by the sunlit
shore
A deep summer breeze swept across the coral reef
It's so familiar, but I swear I've never been here before
Yeah, I've never been here before

My paper surfboard floated out to sea
And crossed the Gulf Stream drifting free

I caught a wisp of color in my hand
And painted mountains in the sand

I swept the shoreline clear of empty shells
Where salty crabs and clams once dwelt

When the sunrays scatter through the atmosphere
I'm always gonna be right here
When the raindrops splatter on the palm-lined shore
You'll never see me disappear

Somewhere off the coast, there's an island home
Where sharks go soaring underwater by the sunlit
shore
A deep summer breeze swept across the coral reef
It's so familiar, but I swear I've never been here before

Yeah, I've never been here before

I washed ashore along the aqua seaboard
It didn't feel the same
If I was dreaming, I would know at once by
The hidden picture frame

Somewhere off the coast, there's an island home
Where sharks go soaring underwater by the sunlit
shore
A deep summer breeze swept across the coral reef
It's so familiar, but I swear I've never been here before
Yeah, I've never been here before

I saw the moon rise up and drench the night in
