Argentinean disco

Sweep up the remains with your shades still on The diaphragm is burning and theres no way home In somebody's apartment you'll stay too long With the Argentinean disco still ringing in your ears

I open up my eyes to a south atlantic beach with the comrades from the city as we run down thru the waves throwing bottles in the morning and continue thru the day as we ride on back to town with a drunkard 'hind the wheel

I've come a long way to get here thru the highways in the east stumbled thru the orchards and the cities along the coast now Im staying on the terrace with a clothesline in the sun hear the dogs and traffic barking down the busy southern road
