Train from Nürnberg

I took a train from outside of Nürnberg carrying a bag of rice looking for a tall blond looking for a stranger looking for somebodys eyes I woke up wednesday or tuesday morning with a headache so unreal she was there beside me and she said well how do you feel

Im looking out the window-High up into the sky My head is filled with broken bones and words that dont apply

I had a job as a pianoplayer in a town by the atlantic coast played them songs I didnt know and the ones I hate the most Living upstairs in an abandoned factory with pigeons in the morning light people come and sing and play, make fires in the night

High up over the rooftops- Higher than everything sitting above a moonlit town hearing it softly sing: Summertime will come in time
Summertime will come and fry your old mind
Tell me if youre just like I am Have you heard the churchbells chime as he climbs on the vine
thru the season

I stood and watched as the freighters were sailing they were heading out away from shore Bound for south america panama and singapore the winds were blowing thru the docks and trainyard blowing thru a human soul blowing thru the backstreets and the places where you wouldnt go

sitting above a moonlit town hearing it softly sing:

Time will come and pass you by and sometimes you'd rather die for a while with the ocean by your side and the silence in the sky and the night and the tide as a reason

Summertime will come in time
Summertime will come and fry your old mind
Tell me if you're just like I am Have you seen the churchbells chime as he climbs on the vine
thru the season
