I see the colors in your face like the paintings that you hang
But only you can read your mind
You don't believe me when I say that your smile makes my day
A little better every time

And I just don't know what else to do
I can't think of anything but you

I thought I had you figured out, well I should've shut my mouth
Because now you've turned and walked away
I know I promised you a song, and I know it's been real long
So here's the heartbreak that you need

And I just don't know what else to do
I can't think of anything but you, but you

There's a cold blooded wave running through your veins
Straight into your heart
But there's nothing left to say, oh no, it's much to late Because you took it all, you took it all away

And I just don't know what else to do
I can't think of anything but you
I wish I knew it wasn't true
I can't think of anything but you
Oh, anything but you
