in between the lines we replace somebody how often do I find revolution in me Watch the space that's left by those who're gone - the names of men Written for only the desperate to find Better yet again gather what we know and start to show these many miles of woe, so
the mean design is mind and body when the two collide revolution in me I'm tired of all these bad signs Now there's no time to wait for people to change their minds Cause from now on their burden is mine Without their screaming they say they're leaving now it's only to remind (to remind)
in between the lines we replace somebody how often do I find revolution in me (revolution in me 2x)
the mean design is mind and body

the mean design is mind and body
when the two collide revolution in me
