Clarence Edwards
"Trouble"

I didn't know what everybody was talking about
Oh no
So I went down to the water
Tried to figure it out
Oh no
Everybody was looking down at the empty ground
Except you baby
And you turned to me with a strange look in your eye
And whispered in my ear

You said oh, oooh, everybody's got a trouble
You said oh, oooh, everybody's got a trouble
Just like me

There I met a man scorched by the sun
He had a ring above his head
And with eyes of chrome
And a voice of steel
He drew his breath, and he said
Oh, oooh, everybody's got a trouble
He said
Oh, oooh, everybody's got a trouble
Just like me
Just like me

He said I should just go home
Oh, he said I should just go home

Oooohhh

Everybody's got a trouble
He said oh, oooh, everybody's got a trouble
It's what he said
Everybody's got a trouble
Just like me
Just like me
Just like me
Just like me

He said I should just go home
He said I should just go home

He said I should just go home

Oh he said, he said, he said

Yeah, he said I should just go home
Oh he said I should just go home
Oh and he said I should just go home