Soon, this year, too, winter will come
You who was by my side isn't here
What should I think? I wonder if
"I want to see you" is no good?

I wasn't your favorite, right
But for some reason or another, we started dating
You were attracted to something I didn't have And we both started liking each other

I knew that cliches like
"Let's stay together forever" Don't come true

We're walking different paths
But you won't leave from my head
If you would turn around for me once again,
I won't need anyone but you

"I want to see you" but I don't know either the town you live in, or how to tell you This winter, I wonder, with whom, what will you spend your time doing?

When I think about how, for sure
I'm the only one who has feelings, it's painful

The time and places we spent together
You disappear from my words and actions
You've become something important to me
I realized it after we seperated

Back then I loved love, right
But now, my heart strains and can say that I like you

When I want to return to the time that we innocently laughed together, I stare at the window
My overflowing tears melt the snow scene that I saw with you
Soon, this year, too, winter will come
You who was by my side isn't here
What should I think? I wonder if

"I want to see you" is no good?
The snow begins to fall
