(Lisa Lindebergh)

It is early, early in the morning, birds and planes furnish the sky
And I'm waking up in my purple bedroom, it's a perfect day for you and I
I tidy up the clothes that cover the floor
Then I walk out the door into the pink hall.
This lazy day, I welcome you into my house.

Drink coffee in my kitchen, baby!
You get the biggest cup you've ever seen in your whole
life.
My yellow, yellow kitchen, baby!
You're the best and I invite you to my cartoon house.

It's a little, little messy sometimes, colored things all over the place
But I have to admit I love that, personal in my own way.
In my lovely living room, the walls are green.
My couch is the biggest one you've ever seen.
This lazy day, I welcome you into my house.

Drink coffee in my kitchen, baby!
You get the biggest cup you've ever seen in your whole
life.
My yellow, yellow kitchen, baby!
You're the best and I invite you to my cartoon house.

Things and things and things, I collect everything I see.
It might be useful sometimes, I think.
When I'm 40, I think I need to move to a castle
To make room for everything.

Drink coffee in my kitchen, baby!
You get the biggest cup you've ever seen in your whole
life.
My yellow, yellow kitchen, baby!
You're the best and I invite you to my cartoon house.
Drink coffee in my kitchen, baby!
You get the biggest cup you've ever seen in your whole

life.
My yellow, yellow kitchen, baby!
You're the best and I invite you to my cartoon house.
