As a forlorn spirit of Smallville I'm starrying from a hill at my many incarnations that became invisible I'm the spirit of the handicapped and now I can feel my limbs Why couldn't people see me when I lived among them?
But I'll no longer cry, or feel that I've been denied as a forlorn spirit of Smallville, I'll rest in peace tonight.

I woke up today to feel what it's like to taste a plate full of food that the world would often waste I'm the spirit of the hungry and now I'm finally fed I dreamed someone would share but they turned their backs instead But I'll no longer cry, or feel that I've been denied
as a forlorn spirit of Smallville, I'll rest in peace tonight

The base of the cross is a level plane but through many eyes, never seen the same.

There were friends in my youth before that I turned grey My words once held meaning now I have nothing to say I'm the spirit of the aged and finally I found home Why was I forgotten and left all alone?
But I'll no longer cry, or feel that I've been denied
as a forlorn spirit of Smallville, I'll rest in peace tonight

But we'll no longer cry, or feel that we've been denied as forlorn spirits of Smallville, we'll rest in peace tonight.
tonight.
