Just so you know, you're losing your touch.
I finally found my way, my way through the dark.
And no no no, you can't hold me here anymore.
My chains are broken and my anchor is set free.
My eyes are set on opportunity.
I'll make it a point to escape what I've known,
with a new world before me, and all this space to grow.

I'm breaking down the door,
getting down to business now,
we're getting down to business now.

I found it's always better when you're not around,
I've got it together now.
We've thrown everything we knew right out the window,
can't turn it around.

Just so you know, you're losing your grip.
My words are cutting off those sleeves,
and now there ain't no tricks.
I'm breaking out, I'm gonna shout,
I'm gonna start a fit.
I've got you trippin over all that God damned game you've spit.
This just won't cut it anymore,
I've got so much else just to live for.
And so you know, so you know, you're losing your touch.
And so you know, so you know, you were only a crutch.

I'm breaking down the door,
getting down to business now,
getting down to business now.
And after all of the time spent, and all of the worry,
It is safe to say that I'll leave in a hurry.
Cause you're not impressing,
oh it's just depressing.
Let's see you chase me now, with this newfound blessing.
