How does it feel to know that everything you want is ours?

You never had it and you know you never will.

You always said that this would never be worth it.

For what it's worth you'll never let this go.

Oh, I can't believe I turned my back and you were right there to leech.

I can't believe I turned my back and you were right there to leech.

Let them see that you're a product of a foundation built on greed.

I will make them see you stand for nothing.

This could never be.

You took what's left of us.

What's it worth to walk this world unknown, believing you're the chosen one?

What's it worth to live this life alone convinced that you will be someone?

You know you're worthless.

We will be everything we've ever dreamed.

We will be everything we've ever dreamed.

So keep telling yourself that everything will be fine.

You just look pathetic.

You're only wasting our time.

No one cares about you, your story has no meaning.

You buried the truth, but they won't keep believing.

I will make them see you stand for nothing.

This could never be.

You took what's left of us.

We always knew that it would come to this.

Your fucking ego never made this easy.

So take a breath and let this all sink in.

You selfish fuck I hope you burn in hell.
