What government understands you? What government knows you're there?

You're the only one who knows you, all your hopes and fears.

So don't recognize their rules, the hold they have on you.

Don't recognize this system and the shit it pulls us through.

But do you really care when a soldier takes a life?

Is the hate you're too blind to see, is it solved on the disco floor?

Do you get the adrenaline rush when you hear your favorite tune?

You're dancing with the system and you think it's being you.

Who's Sussed? Who's Sussed? Who's Sussed?

When you plan your future do you include the human race?

When you've served your purpose who will take your place?

So where now god of gods? Religion digs our graves.

That preconceived morality, what god has ever saved?

So do you really care when a soldier takes a life?

Is the hate you're too blind to see, is it solved on the disco floor?

Do you get the adrenaline rush when you hear your favorite tune?

You're dancing with the system and you think it's being you.

Who's Sussed? Who's Sussed? Who's Sussed?

Who is this Jesus, this Buddha, this Christ that turns man against his brother?

That turns man against earth? What sustains the balance of thought?

What sustains that balance of power? Our indifferences it opens the cage.

The morality pushes us in. Our acceptance locks the door.

Who's Sussed? Who's Sussed? Who's Sussed?
