(Roy Baham - Gene Norell)

Somebody walks among the flowers
Gentle footsteps there above me
My tears fall for love that was ours
He's here, I know he cares
Someone up there still loves me.

In jealous rage he took my life
If only he had known
I cried in fear but he didn't hear
I didn't do him wrong.

They carved in stone unfaithful woman
Scorned by all who walk above me
But there's one red rose with each new dawning
The night, the night is ours
Someone up there still loves me.

Someday I'll hear the shovels falling
Once more the mourners there above me
Until they lay him here beside me
He walks as really proof
Someone up there still loves me...
