I used to like, dickriding, bullshit I used to like, patonizers and politics I used to like, potheads and alcoholic kids I used to like, Neil Young, Frank Zappa and the Beatles
I used to like music

I used to like using slang in all my sentences I used to like spelling with with k's and z's in my penmanship
I used to like doing my b-boy stance I used to like wearing triple x shirts and over sized pants
I used to like being put into groups and categories now I like my e-mail death threats andmyspace beef I used to like poetry slams till they found out I wasnt a lesbian or a liberal so let all the hippies tap their glasses till I leave the stage
I'll be shooting my hip hop gun while the traditionalists tell me to act civil we've been chasing our dreams in a mini-van letting our music steer we probably came through your town but you were probably acting too hip-hop amused at yourself in the mirror, YO I used to like reviews, but once they're printed you're stuck with them and I wish I was a critic of critics so I could diss the fuck out of 'em me and AwareNess are music hip hop RAP whatever you want to call it theres a thing called love and it doesnt involve filling up your wallet mr. rich kid, mr. gang member, we werent brought up the same so I'm sorry if my raps arent drenched in slang maybe I should try to write a fucken song without cussing (Biatch) so we could perform at fairs and festivals and if you don't like our music please direct your comments to Mr. T dash esticles

I used to have favorite emcees till they got popular, got money and got cool and if things go write you'll hate us too

It's performing at shows with somebody there It's putting your last drop of energy into a song and having everybody stare It's patience, fate, longevity, aggression and letting the pen bleed man it's fucking bullshit and it's in me man it's fucking music and it's filled with envy

I used to like anti
I used to like people
I used to like music
I used to like smiles
I used to like anti
I used to like smiles
