And so you hate my face because I'm different the streets are never safe afraid to show my face think with an open mind we're running out of time can't cover up the lie why won't we even try why must we be this way step out of your own world just take the time to think and make a better world it's better that you know why must we always fight this world ain't black and white another racial clash can't wipe away the hate my life's a mystery look in investigate beat down for standing up emotions will erupt just come together now before it's just too late why must we be this way step out of your own world just take the time to think and make a better world it's better that you know why must we always fight this world ain't black and white is it so fair to judge when bias is the law when bigotry grows strong and all the heros hall we walk on separate sides and spiteful words divide give unity a try let all the hatred die why must we be this way step out of your own world just take the time to think and make a better world it's better that you know why must we always fight this world ain't black and white
