I don't need to wait for somebody just to call my own.
(Let them take what is left of me.)
I just need to find my soul when the lights go out
(Am I all alone?)

I don't need to wait for somebody just to call my own
(Let them take what is left of me)
I just need to find my soul when the lights go out
(Am I all alone?)

Live it up
While you wait for it
Live it up
Lose a day for it

And I know that it goes without saying that modern complexion is irrelevant here
The only means of air flow is brought by the scent of your hair
That candlelight serves better on the inside not out
That the square engulfs the circle like the scream engulfs the shout

I'm made of stone
Medicate the unknown
Serve me in small pieces
So you'll never eat alone

I don't need to wait for somebody just to call my own.
(Let them take what is left of me.)
I just need to find my soul when the lights go out
(Am I all alone?)

I don't need to wait for somebody just to call my own
(Let them take what is left of me)
I just need to find my soul when the lights go out
(Am I all alone?)

You hold on to a fraction of the pigmentation that was left behind
Rubble built on lies

And I know that we were happy well before it was said
That the involuntary motion never felt so bad
Tasting every single notion of my writer's block
Is just cause and effect of staring at this clock
Now I'm walking to the ocean looking to the sea
Praying it will drown my sorrow with what's left of me

Fill my lungs, now there's nothing left to say

I don't need to wait for somebody just to call my own
(Let them take what is left of me)
I just need to find my soul when the lights go out
(Am I all alone?)

I don't need to wait for somebody just to call my own
(Let them take what is left of me)
I just need to find my soul when the lights go out
(Am I all alone?)

I don't need to wait for somebody just to call my own
(Let them take what is left of me)
I just need to find my soul when the lights go out
(Am I all alone?)

I don't need to wait for somebody just to call my own.
I just need to find my soul when the lights go out
