The echo of my footsteps, match the beating of my heart.

There's shadows in the loneliness since we've been apart.

I'm haunted by a heartache in a never ending swirl
Of desert dust and tumble weeds, you've left me in a world

That's a ghost town, with you not around,
There could be people everywhere, but all I do is stare
Into this ghost town, without you here
And the pain is hard to bear, in this cold and dusty air
Since you left me in a ghost town

I rode up to the canyon, where we used to meet
Tried to get beyond the tears and all those memories
I looked out in that blue sky, I used to love this town
It's not the same old sunset now, there's no love to be found

Cause it's a ghost town, with you not around
There could be people everywhere, but all I do is stare
Into this ghost town, without you here
And the pain is hard to bear, in this cold and dusty air
Since you left me in a ghost town

There's a lonely desert wind that's blowing through my heart tonight
And there's a glow in that sierra sky as the sun sets all around
And the silence is so loud, that my soul can't hear a sound
Since you left me in a ghost town
Since you left me in a ghost town

The echo of my footsteps, match the beating of my heart
