"Your Ocean"

I dreamt of heights last night
Of broken down cars out of sight
You looked so cold at four
Sleep-stealer knocks down your door

Keep dreaming my dear
Don't let the dawn hear 'bout riches and kingdoms
River's so sheer
I know you've been there

Your ocean turned green then grey
The morning had shown up late
The make-believe day's on it's way
So throw away your hopes and feelings

Keep breathing my dear
Don't let the dawn hear 'bout where you've been hiding
The morning's so bare

I know you've been there
