Just what nobody wanted
I'm just what nobody wanted
Just what nobody wanted
I'm just what nobody wanted

I think that life has got it in for me
Can you please tell me who's to blame?
For all the bills upon my mat
They breed and grow then eat the cat
Where they come from I don't know
I stare at them but they won't go

It seems that life's a big frustration
Why is everybody out to bring me down?
There has to be a simple explanation
Why failure is the fashion every time I come to town

If life is sweet then I'm diabetic
The future looks rosy, I just went colorblind

This all seems to be some mass conspiracy
So I demand the right to know
If there's a God up there, how come He seems to care?
For every little bird and bee couldn't give a damn for me

It seems that life's a big frustration
Why is everybody out to bring me down?
There has to be a simple explanation
Why failure is the fashion every time I come to town

If high hopes were bank notes
I'd own all of England
And teardrops were diamonds
Then I'd be a millionaire

Just what nobody wanted
I'm just what nobody wanted
Just what nobody wanted
I'm just what nobody wanted

You say I'm purely being paranoid

I beg to differ, it's not true
Shit just seems to hit the fan
Every time I make a plan
Grand design to small detail
All I do is doomed to fail

It seems that life's a big frustration
Why is everybody out to bring me down?
There has to be a simple explanation
Why failure is the fashion every time I come to town

If life is sweet then I'm diabetic
The future looks rosy, I just went colorblind

I'm just what nobody wanted at all
