I've heard it all before and it always is the same
We never take reward, we always take the blame You're trying to bring us down; you're trying to steal away our dreams
But what you think you've done, is only what it seems It's a lesson we've all learned to try and keep our conscience turned From all the lies and all the fears and all the things you'd like to hear

We've been here for way too long and that's why we chose to right this song About all the things we've done in spite of all you ever wanted
We've been pushed around before and that's why we're tossing out the door Ideas you had of me and all the things you would like to see Remember who you are
We know, we know
Remember who you are
We know who we are

I've got this funny feeling, I got this feeling of regret If the whole world's not against me, it must be in my head
So what are we supposed to do and where are we supposed to go?
The only places left are places we don't wanna know So when we think we're lost, and when we think we've lost our mind,
All the love, all the hope, and all the things we hold inside...

And all the things you wanted
And all the things you said
And everything we've done Look at what we've done
You're wrong, you're wrong
