

The Front Bottoms

"Sometimes It's Hard To Tell"

Visit "Sometimes It's Hard To Tell" on MotoLyrics.com

Time is ticking, off the clock
I'm stuck between concrete and rock
My soul is burning, like the center of the sun

And I believe, in that road less traveled by Sometimes I walk it, sometimes I let it slide Those times I'm sliding, I don't like what I've become

Chorus:

Take a look in that well you call your soul, boy
Are you in heaven or are you in hell Sometimes it seems that you've been, living by the word
But sometimes it's hard to tell

We make our prisons, up in our minds
The key is always something that we just can't seem to find
The door is wide open, all you have to do is just walk right through

And I've seen oceans, in the eyes of my daughters
They make me want to walk upon the water
The bill of righteousness, it must always ring true

Repeat Chorus

Visit The Front Bottoms page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.