who was I fooling?
I still had your name burned in my heart when my lips where lying you still seemed to know my every thought every nightfall's like a reflection of the debt of love I owe to you every morning rings like a phone call saying "when will you be home?"

CHORUS

I see your arms stretched wide I think I'll lay my burdens here
I could just fall forever
I could just fall forever here shame overwhelms me every trial I put you through how could I take back all the insults hurled at you? every night you call went unanswered every day I heard and ran

CHORUS

longing to hold this broken child
I could just fall forever
I could just fall forever here
