"What Holds Us"

I've done my share of wrongs,
I've done my share of rights,
But what you said the other night
Didn't make it all right.
The shapes that the consonants and vowels
That formed passing between my lips
Only filled me with the deepest regret.
No, I don't know if my brother
Is my brother in Christ,
And I'm scared to death where will he will go
When he dies.
Call it my insecurities that keep me talking to him,
But I just want to Love him for who he is.

I don't want to be told,
"I don't see Jesus in you."
No, I don't want to be told,
"I don't see Jesus in you."
No.

'Cause if we take what we get and get what we want,
When it's all said and done, we're left dead on the floor,
Because Love holds us.

So I ran to you,
And all you had to say was,
"I Love..."

I don't want to be told,
"I don't see Jesus in you."
No, I don't want to be told,
"I don't see Jesus in you."
No.

'Cause if we take what we get and get what we want,
When it's all said and done, we're left dead on the
floor,
Because Love is what holds us together,
But it is Love that holds us apart.
