well i sat around on the 15th floor amongst the factory clouds feeling free to fall with a twisted, burning, bending head the police cruised by the sky turned red i moved away from the barricades where people hung their heads in shame i kissed goodbye to an ugly youth leapt off the world and followed you the sweetest sight was burning bright in your eyes

you took my hand and led me to a magic sign
and we found love on a stained glass plate you touched my head and gave me faith and said i must be strong in this world of hate you kissed my lips and took my breath away well we soldiered on for 15 days and met a million people on our way we held their hands, to steal their land and turn our bibles into building plans we gave them beads and a t.v. set and turned their babies into fighting men we took no blame for the lives we lost because we did it all in the name of god the greatest thing was a new born king with a million by his side we were high on prayers climbing golden stairs when we took the magic ride

we found love on a golden day you touched my head, you gave me faith and said i must be strong in this world of hate
took my breath away you touched my head and gave me faith you said i must be strong in this world of hate so kiss my lips and take my breath away kiss my lips and take my breath away
