I broke my own rule
When I said I'd see you
How do you get me
Stressed out like a fool

So talk to your mother
Tell her you're leaving town
I know we talk the talk
But the time is now

Nobody matters
This town could turn to stone
What do we owe them
Not a thing at all

By the morning we'll be so long gone
Nothing left to do but run run run
They can look but they will find no one
Nothing left to do but run run run

You want the answer
To 'why did I come here'
I don't know the difference
Between love and fear

By the morning we'll be so long gone
Nothing left to do but run run run
They can look but they will find no one
Nothing left to do but run run run

By the morning we'll be so long gone
Nothing left to do but run run run
They can look but they will find no one
Nothing left to do but run run run

I broke my own rule
