We're slowly rising
Leaving the earth beneath our feet
Night's growing colder
We make our way into a new fantasy

You can see them fading
Darkness all around us now
Hearts beating faster
We will never be turning back again

Everywhere you go from here alone
Will be your own story
Wear those silent lies inside without hiding
An asylum in the night

It's a game of waiting
Searching the light on the other side
We're solemnly praying
For all the loved ones left behind

A new dawn is breaking
Embracing the earth and the stony ground
If you stay you're stranded
Tired and torn, head into the eye of the storm

Everywhere you go from here alone
Will be your own story
Wear those silent lies inside without hiding
An asylum in the night

You stand tall with your head on your shoulder
You see danger but you won't even go near
You got to go 'cause you're just getting older
You got to be moving, moving on

Everywhere we go from here, we're alone
