When I think about the past and how the times are changing
I get a little sad just knowing that I can never go back

Everyone is changing
The world's a little stranger
Every time I stop and look around

I have to face it
Might as well embrace it
Those days are never coming back, no more

I remember summer nights live it up until the sunrise
We would change the world and live forever, and all in one night

Everyone's changing
The world's a little stranger
Every time I stop and look around

I have to face it
Might as well embrace it
Those days are never coming back, no more

Now I find myself in another place
Trying to relive those days
But I'd better make the most of now
Cuz time waits for no man I have found

Now I'm older I'm supposed to know more and dream less
But life was so much easier way back when I have to confess

Everyone's changing
The world's a little stranger
Every time I stop and look around

I have to face it
Might as well embrace it
Those days are never coming back, no more
