"What If"

Visit "What If" on MotoLyrics.com

When time goes by in a disarray
And thoughts collide every step of the way
It's hard to stand your ground again
When you feel you're being betrayed

You need someone that can point the way
To lead you past all the shades of grey
To show you where you need to be
The means to save the day

Ohh-oh, I don't know how it feels to always wanna run
And I don't know what it means to be dying just to live

What if you were left with a stone cold heart?
And you were all alone, just fallin' apart?
Would you rise again? Would you rise again?
What if hope was lost for a hundred days?
And you feel your life was just slippin' away?
Would you rise again? Would you rise again?
What if?

When dreams are made of the simple stuff
The right to choose and to say enough
When all you want is life again
It's hard to be that tough, oh

I don't know how it feels to always wanna run
And I don't know what it means to be dying just to live

What if you were left with a stone cold heart?
And you were all alone, just fallin' apart?
Would you rise again? Would you rise again?
What if hope was lost for a hundred days?
And you feel your life was just slippin' away?
Would you rise again? Would you rise again?
What if?

What if you were left with a stone cold heart?
And you were all alone, just fallin' apart?
Would you rise again? Would you rise again?
What if hope was lost for a hundred days?

And you feel your life was just slippin' away?
Would you rise again? Would you rise again?
What if? What if
