I'm writing young and gifted
In my autobiography
I figured who would know
Better than me
I'm certainly the former
But I'm not so much the latter
But no one's gonna read it
So I'm sure it doesn't matter

When you find that you're the former
Take pride in how you form
And when you find that you're the latter
Don't let those people
Walk under you-oooh

I'm writing sharp and adult
With my finger on the steam
On the mirror in my bathroom
And I'm applying shaving cream
Which would suggest that I'm the foamer
But how can I be the latter
And something tells me
It's the opposite I'd rather

When you find that you're the foamer
Be careful what you foam
When you find that you're the latter
Don't shave too high
You'll regret it later
La La-la-la La-la-la-la
La La-la-la La-la-la-la

I stayed in school this long
But still no one will tell me why
They figured who would know
Better than I
I know I'm a conformer
But I'm sure it doesn't matter
My new friends are all adults
And my old friends all have scattered

When you find you're a conformer

Take pride and swallow whole
If you're trying to climb the ladder
Don't let people walk over you
Because that's just what they'll do
Don't let people walk over you
Because that's just what they'll do
